Darkroom Dave Website

There are now articles and videos on DarkroomDave for Night Photography, City Photography, Trip Planning, Using a Sekonic Spot Meter for Film Photography (part of this appeared on the Sekonic blog), Processing a Fibre Based Print, Black and White Film Processing Using Paterson Tanks.

The next videos should cover Split Grade Printing the Ilford Way. They will be added in to the existing Split Grade Printing text article. It should be even easier to follow the simple technique with a few videos.

New Photos

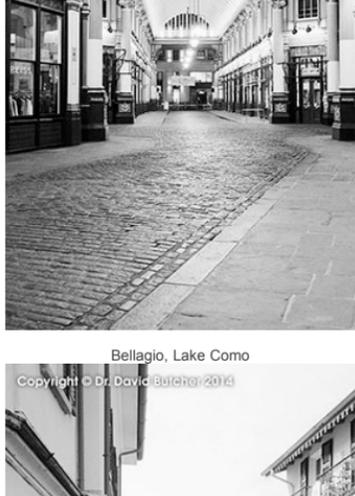

I recently received a request for vertical panoramics of Italy and Leadenhall Market. After delving into my photo library I selected 8 negatives that I thought would work best with this format, several are shown below.

I have quite a few new images of the Swiss Alps taken on ski mountaineering trips a few years ago. I also added several images for the Chamonix area, mostly from skiing but also one from snowshoeing. Lots of Mont Blanc from various viewpoints are included.

Since the July Newsletter I have added the new photographs of the Lake District that I mentioned were on the way. these were taken on my June trip with good friend Al.

Latest Blog Posts

This summary of my blog posts was lost from the edits of the last newsletter in July so I have included some highlights from the last few months.

Just click each link and it will take you to that blog post.

New Book Project

My two new books are moving along nicely. So far I have had a bias to the snowy book which I expect will be called Snow Light.

We are still on track to publish them later this year.

It's given me a chance to review all of the photographs I took on my ski mountaineering and Alpine snowshoeing trips that didn't really fit into any of my last 3 books.

Still lots of scanning to do.

The two new books will be the same format as the previous four with about 120 photographs in each.

The Handmade Photograph

There is a new magazine at TheHandmadePhotograph.com

for creative photography and also covers all things to do with printing, not just darkroom either.

Available as a hard copy magazine too.

It's US based and I am writing articles for it on darkroom processing and printing. In this issue I cover Setting up a Darkroom.

The second issue has just come out for a modest fee of $2.99 in order to receive it online.

There is a lot of free stuff on the website too, including lots of blog posts.
